“God Speaks” in Lord, Let us Listen series

Text John 12:20-33

The sermon discusses the various ways God communicates in the Bible and reflects on how people often desire a more direct form of communication from God.

God speaks through different mediums, including actions, animals, prophets, poets, dreams, visions, and nature.

While it's understandable to seek a specific mode of communication from God, Scripture shows that God speaks clearly only occasionally and usually about God's work in the world, addressing the entire faith community.

People often place too much importance on the sermon, expecting the preacher to speak directly for God. However, the sermon is one of many ways God speaks in worship and life, along with music, actions, prayers, dreams, and more.

It's important to embrace the mystery and wonder of God's speaking into our lives, recognizing the diversity of ways in which God communicates and being open to listening and hearing God's voice.
